Moore served with the Persian Expeditionary Force in 1856-57, and was present at the assault and capture of Reshure, surrender of Bashire, at Borazjoon, and at the action of Khoushan—horse killed (Victoria Cross, and Medal with Clasp); received the V.C. under the following circumstances:—"On the occasion of an attack on the enemy on the 8th February 1857, led by Lieutenant Colonel Forbes, Ch., Lieutenant Moore, the Adjutant of the regiment, was, perhaps, the first of all by a horse's length. His horse leaped into the square, and instantly fell dead, crushing down his rider, and breaking his sword as he fell and the broken ranks of the enemy. Lieutenant Moore speedily extricated himself, and attempted with his broken sword to force his way through the press; but he would assuredly have lost his life had not the gallant young Lieutenant Malcolmson, observing his peril, fought his way to his dismounted comrade through a crowd of enemies to his rescue, and, giving him his stirrup, safely carried him through everything out of the throng. The thoughtfulness for others, and determination, devoted courage and ready activity shown in extreme danger by this young Officer, Lieutenant Malcolmson, appear to have been most admirable, and to be worthy of the highest honour." The Officer who commanded the troops on the occasion reports: 'About an hour later in the day, Dr. Douglas, 2nd Battalion, 24th Regiment, and the four privates referred to, gallantly manning the second gig, made their way through the surf almost to the shore, but finding their boat was half-filled with water, they retired. A second attempt made by Dr. Douglas and party proved successful, five of us being safely passed through the surf to the boats outside. A third and last trip got the whole of the party left on shore safe to the boats.' It is stated that Dr. Douglas accomplished these trips through the surf to the shore by no ordinary exertion. He stood in the bows of the boat, and worked her in an intrepid and seamanlike manner, cool to a degree, as if what he was then doing was an ordinary act of everyday life. The four privates behaved in an equally cool and collected manner, rowing through the roughest surf when the slightest hesitation or want of pluck on the part of any one of them would have been attended by the gravest results. It is reported that seventeen officers and men were thus saved from what must otherwise have been a fearful risk, if not certainty of death.'

Captain Holmes, Captain McRae, and others proceeded to the spot, and let down a well rope of sufficient length to reach the soldier, and capable of sustaining him for a time. Both Captain McRae and Captain Holmes volunteered to go down, but as the former was a light weight it was decided that he should make the trial, Captain Holmes demurring, as he wished to undertake the risk himself. The rope being very weak, it could not possibly have borne Captain Holmes's great weight. Captain McRae was accordingly let down by means of a four-strand tent rope, and on reaching the water found the soldier practically insensible; he therefore decided to go up with him. Captain Holmes was at the head of the rope, and his strength enabled him to lift both completely. After hauling up about 10 or 15 feet, the rope broke, precipitating Captain McRae and his charge to the bottom of the well. A second attempt was made, and both were brought to the surface. The depth of the well was 88 feet, of which 12 feet was water. It was quite dark at the time. With reference to this case, the following divisional order by the Duke of Connaught was issued to the troops in his command:—"His Royal Highness the Major General Commanding, having been made acquainted with the circumstances connected with the rescue from drowning in a well at Rawul Pindee of Trumpeter S. Meehan, R.A., desires to record in divisional orders his deep sense of a devotion and gallantry displayed on the occasion by Captains McRae and Holmes, 45th Sikhs, and to convey to those officers his warm appreciation of their conduct, which reflects the greatest credit upon themselves, their regiment, and Her Majesty's service generally.
